

Spongy Microbes

This Creature is about as smart as a wolf or pig but has additional talents. It craves affection and physical contact, often piling up with its fellow creatures in one big happy communion. Together they make lovely harmonic, ecstatic, almost angelic sounds. As a group they lay in wait for prey and smother the being in a happy pile. The sweet opiate they emit allows the victim to die happy. Some seek out the help of these creatures when they want to die. They are extremely loyal to those they have bonded with, even if not of their own kind. This extreme bonding can be taken advantage of as they can be persuaded to do the bidding of the the ones they are bonded to, no matter how horrendous. Be wary, these soft cuddly bundles can shoot out sharp spikes containing any number of poisons or opiates.

